

Villa Amiata Tuscany, Italy

What we love...

We love eating al fresco at the outdoor table under the leafy pergola on a warm evening.

If you were to draw a picture of your fantasy Tuscan villa it would probably look something like Villa Amiata - beautifully aged terracotta tiles, earthy Tuscan shades on the walls, simple wooden shutters. But inside this traditionally rustic exterior, you'll find all the mod cons you could ask for, luxury fixtures and fittings, and a restful atmosphere that just makes you breathe a bit more slowly.

Perched high on a hilltop on a stunning estate that houses a boutique hotel, Amiata commands views of the Val d'Orcia from the upstairs sitting room, which also has a fabulous audio-visual system, making it a great spot to relax with a film or music while you enjoy the view.

The jewel in the crown of this property however must be the spa bathroom for the master bedroom, which includes a steam room and whirlpool bath - just the spot for relaxing in the privacy of your own luxury villa.

A modern and well-equipped kitchen is ideally appointed for you to prepare relaxed meals using the many exciting local ingredients. Foodies might enjoy having a cookery lesson in the villa, during which you can learn how to prepare traditional Tuscan dishes. A partially covered dining table outside is the perfect place to enjoy your Italian feasts, shaded from the heat of the sun in daytime, and subtly illuminated by night.

Guests of Amiata have access to all the amenities of the boutique hotel which include two fantastic restaurants, outdoor and indoor pools, a spa, cocktail lounge and gym to name just a few. Housed on the same estate, guests also enjoy the privilege of a luxury holiday villa with complete privacy and unparalleled peace.

Villa Amiata

Eating

Each morning a complimentary breakfast including fruit, yoghurt, pastries and a selection of local delicacies is served in the hotel restaurant.

Your villa will be stocked with coffee and water, and refreshed daily, and there is a good selection of wines available to purchase, too.

The villa boasts a top-of-the-range kitchen and you can buy wonderful local ingredients in the village. If you feel you need a bit of inspiration, sign up for private lessons with the on-site cookery school.

Should you wish to eat out, your concierge will be happy to book tables for you. Don't miss the opportunity to eat at Oreade, the hotel's own fine dining restaurant, for a true Tuscan farm-to-table experience.

A private chef can be arranged to cook for you and your party in your villa, too.
