

Chalet Pierrys Morzine, France

What we love...

We love the hot tub out on the sunny terrace – the ideal spot for an afternoon drink to relax before dinner.

This is how to do understated luxury. Chalet Pierrys is a traditional style luxury ski chalet in Morzine, France, where the simple becomes something special.

The property is decorated in neutral, muted tones, employing natural materials such as wood and stone for a calming feel. Hide throws, faux fur cushions and luxurious linens combine with oak furniture and a roaring fire to make this luxury ski chalet into the ultimate snowy hideaway to share with friends.

It is close to some of Europe's most desirable slopes, and Chalet Pierrys is every bit as chic as Morzine itself. Attentive staff and a raft of top-of-the-range gadgets, from Apple TV to a Wii, bring contemporary luxe to this traditional property and make life here just so easy.

You'll wake each morning to a hot drink at your bedside, easing you into the day, and a delicious cooked and continental breakfast downstairs.

In the afternoons, on your return from the slopes, gather around the roaring fire in the impressive stone fireplace in the living area, cosied under luxury throws and tuck into afternoon tea together. Then take yourself off for a gruelling soak in the outdoor hot tub on the sunny south-facing terrace. You poor things.

Once fully recharged, why not slip into something wonderful in time for champagne and canapes round the fire while your chef prepares a slap-up four course gourmet meal? The oak refectory style table is the perfect backdrop for wine-fuelled talking and eating with friends. Round off the meal with local cheeses, ports and perhaps take your after-dinner drinks out onto that terrace to see the spectacular panoramic views and the stars twinkling over Morzine.
