

Villa Juno

Mykonos, Greece

What we love...

We love the huge bamboo-clad pergola which has panoramic views of the sparkling Aegean and makes you feel as though you're hanging out in your own private bar.

With sweeping, sun-drenched views across Ftelia Bay and the headland beyond, a stay at this luxury villa is the stuff dreams are made of. From a distance, the charming, traditional white stone villa may look modest, but get up close and you'll soon see it's just as special as its views.

Villa Juno's architecture has been expertly designed so that the building seems to blend seamlessly into the cliffside - with multi-level terraces cascading down to a large infinity pool, and the villa itself set into the rocks. From the infinity pool and surrounding terraces, look up and you'll see a single storey whitewashed house, with pretty shuttered doors, a large bamboo-clad pergola and an open-air kitchen to one side.

Venture inside and the understated luxuries come to light. The villa's main upper floor is made up of bright, light living spaces that connect through open archways. There is a stylish modern kitchen with large stone dining table, a chic Scandi-style living room with plenty of sofa space, and a smaller, tranquil nook for reading and relaxing.

On the upper level there also three en suite double bedrooms - all with access to the main terrace and similarly neutral, airy décor. Downstairs, there are two further en suite doubles, which both lead out to a patio with sea views. And even when the sea isn't quite in sight, splashes of bright blue in the soft furnishings and the unique stone bathroom fittings remind you of your beautiful Greek setting.

Eating

Villa Juno comes with not one but two kitchens, meaning foodies are well catered for here. Opt to escape the heat and prepare a light lunch inside the cool, striking-white indoor kitchen, or, at night, head out to the shaded open-air kitchen and get some meat smoking on the barbeque.

When it comes to dining areas, you're also spoilt for choice. Perhaps a low-key breakfast with a view outside your bedroom, followed by a quick lunch by the pool, and then dinner at the large outdoor dining table. Once you're suitably full of Greek goodness and the sun has set, wind down on the outdoor sofas and stargaze with a drink or two.

If shopping and cooking everyday isn't your idea of a relaxing holiday, don't fear, you can arrange for the basic shopping to be taken care of, and then head out to dinner every night. There are a handful of local restaurants within walking distance of the villa and many more upmarket spots in nearby Mykonos Town.
